ASMSA

The Arkansas School for Mathematics, Sciences, and the Arts (ASMSA), a campus of the University of Arkansas System, invites applications from highly qualified candidates for a ten-month, full-time opening as a Music Instructor beginning August 1, 2023. This member of ASMSA's faculty will play a critical role in the continued cultivation of the school's arts curriculum and initiatives.

ASMSA seeks a dynamic, accomplished music educator with a background in brass or percussion to join our growing music program and augment our trajectory of excellence. Principal responsibilities will include directing or co-directing the ASMSA Wind Ensemble, coaching chamber groups and sectionals, teaching lessons in the candidate's applied area family, assisting with the Music Capstone / Studio Class experience, potentially directing the ASMSA Jazz Ensemble, and/or teaching in other areas of experience or specialty, with a projected class load of 4 or 5 courses or course equivalencies per semester.

The successful candidate will have ample opportunities to develop and supplement curricular offerings within the ASMSA Music Program. ASMSA's music program takes part in all ASBOA-regulated activities and encourages growth, community, and excellence through experiences. The successful candidate will work closely with students and will identify opportunities for student success. ASMSA faculty receive support for continued professional development and the successful candidate will be strongly encouraged to continue their professional creative and expressive endeavors.

A Master's degree in music with the ability to teach certain college-credit courses is required. Of particular interest are candidates with backgrounds in jazz, music theory, and/or music business and technology. All candidates should demonstrate evidence of excellence in teaching. Preferred candidates will have a minimum of three years of teaching experience. Experience working with gifted students is a plus.
